

Snack Suggestions While You're discussing Missing in Mexico by Stuart Gustafson

You're getting together to discuss a book set at the southern tip of Mexico's Baja peninsula, so why not give your gathering the atmosphere of a Mexican Fiesta? (Ask 2 or 3 people to bring the refreshments so it's not a big task for one person.)

1. Make taco salad, tacos, or enchiladas using corn tortillas to keep the menu gluten-free so more can enjoy!
2. For lighter fare, serve up chips and salsa -- have both a red salsa and a green one; garnish with cilantro and sliced fresh limes.
3. Home-made guacamole (if fresh avocados are available) is a great addition to any dish or snack.
4. Serving margarita mix over crushed ice provides a refreshing taste without the alcohol (add tequila if appropriate).
5. Download some mariachi music to play in the background or buy a used CD with festive music.
